1 About this policy

This policy explains how Forward Futures Group Ltd uses cookies and similar technologies on its website, the choices available to visitors and where to find current details of the technologies in use. It should be read with IGN-002 Website Privacy Notice.

The website will not set or use a non-essential cookie or similar technology before the required consent has been obtained. Visitors may reject non-essential technologies as easily as they can accept them and may change their choice at any time.

2 What cookies and similar technologies are

Cookies are small files or pieces of information stored on, or accessed from, a computer, phone or other device when a website is used. Similar technologies can include local storage, pixels, tags, scripts, software development kits and device identifiers. This policy uses the word cookies to cover these technologies where the same rules apply.

Some cookies last only for the browser session. Others remain until their stated expiry date or until the visitor deletes them. A cookie may be placed directly by Forward Futures Group's website or by an approved third-party service.

3 Why we use cookies

Depending on the website's current configuration, cookies may be used to:

- operate pages, forms and security features;
- remember a visitor's cookie choices or optional preferences;
- protect the website from misuse, fraud or malicious activity;
- understand website use and performance where permitted;
- identify faults and improve accessibility and user experience;
- load optional embedded content or support communications and campaigns where consent has been given.

4 Categories of cookies

The categories below explain how cookies may be classified. The Cookie Settings panel on the website gives the current cookie-level information for the services that are actually enabled.

Category	Purpose	Consent	Typical duration
Strictly necessary	Operate the website, protect security, maintain a user session and remember cookie choices.	Not normally required where the legal exemption applies.	Session or the period shown in Cookie Settings.
Preferences and functionality	Remember optional choices and provide enhanced or personalised features.	Required unless a specific legal exemption applies.	Shown in Cookie Settings.
Analytics and performance	Understand use of the website, identify errors and improve performance.	Required unless a specific legal exemption applies and all conditions are met.	Shown in Cookie Settings.
Marketing and embedded content	Measure campaigns, support advertising or load optional content supplied by another organisation.	Required before the technology is activated.	Shown in Cookie Settings.

5 Consent and legal position

Forward Futures Group follows the Privacy and Electronic Communications Regulations and applicable UK data-protection law. Consent is not normally required for a technology that is strictly necessary to provide a service requested by the visitor or that falls within another applicable legal exemption. We will still explain its use.

Where consent is required, it must be freely given, specific, informed and demonstrated by a clear positive choice. Non-essential technologies will remain disabled unless and until that choice is made. Continuing to browse, silence or a pre-selected option will not be treated as consent. Withdrawing consent will not affect earlier lawful use.

6 Current cookie details

The website's Cookie Settings panel provides the current name, provider, purpose, category and duration of each cookie or similar technology that may be used. It also identifies whether the technology is operated by Forward Futures Group or by another organisation. The panel can be reopened from the website footer or cookie settings link.

Keeping the cookie-level schedule within the live settings panel allows it to remain accurate when the website's technical configuration changes. If no non-essential cookies are enabled, the panel will make this clear. Forward Futures Group will check the panel against the live website before publication and after material website changes.

7 Third-party services and embedded content

A page may contain content or functionality supplied by another organisation, such as a video, map, social-media item, booking tool or analytics service. Such a service may wish to store or access information on the visitor's device. Where consent is required, the service will not be activated until consent is given.

Third-party providers may process information under their own privacy arrangements. The Cookie Settings panel identifies the providers used by the current website. Visitors should review a provider's privacy information where they choose to activate its content or service.

8 Managing or withdrawing consent

Visitors can accept, reject or manage non-essential cookies through the website's consent controls. A previous choice can be changed at any time by reopening Cookie Settings. Withdrawal will prevent future use of the relevant optional technologies, although cookies already stored may remain until they expire or are deleted.

Browser or device settings can also be used to view, block or delete cookies. Blocking all cookies may prevent essential parts of the website from working correctly. Browser controls do not replace the website's responsibility to obtain consent where consent is required.

9 Personal information and international access

Some cookie information, such as an Internet Protocol address, online identifier or device information, may be personal information. IGN-002 Website Privacy Notice explains how Forward Futures Group uses, protects and retains website information and describes the rights available to individuals.

If an approved provider stores or accesses personal information outside the United Kingdom, Forward Futures Group will ensure that an appropriate lawful transfer arrangement and safeguards are used where required.

10 Our website responsibilities

Forward Futures Group will:

- maintain a record of the cookies and similar technologies used by the website;
- configure non-essential technologies so they do not operate before the required consent;
- provide clear choices without misleading design or unnecessary barriers;
- retain appropriate evidence of consent and honour withdrawal;
- review cookies, providers, purposes and durations after material website or supplier changes;
- remove unused technologies and keep the live Cookie Settings information accurate.

11 Contact

Questions about this policy or the use of cookies should be directed to Brooke Wager, Founder and CEO, at Brooke@forwardfuturesgroup.com or to Forward Futures Group Ltd, 140 Church Road, Skegness, Lincolnshire, PE25 2QJ.

A concern about the use of personal information may also be raised with the Information Commissioner's Office through www.ico.org.uk/make-a-complaint or by telephone on 0303 123 1113.

12 Changes to this policy

We will review this policy when the website, consent arrangements, providers or legal requirements change materially. The current version and effective date will be published on the website. Cookie-level changes will be reflected in the live Cookie Settings panel so that visitors can see the current position.
